Nimrods in Camp.

The crew of hunters of which the editor of The Expositor is a member, we learn are comfortably located on the banks of Canada Creek eleven miles south of Onaway, in Presque Isle county. A brief description of the camp may be of interest to our readers.

Two tents are placed facing each other and a building connecting is made of tar paper. Here is the heating stove, while in one tent the succulent venison is cooked and the flap jacks are lapped, and all turn to with giant appetites to partake of these dainties. In the other tent their weary bodies are laid to rest to be refreshed through the night with blessed sleep.

Canada Creek is a beautiful stream and the surrounding country, hills and valleys with lakes dotting the levels, making a fine bit of scenery. Speckled trout abound in the creek and plenty of fish and ducks are to be found in the lakes. The hunters may regale themselves with a variety of meat but it is deer they are after and time is too precious to be wasted on such small game, so the lives of these will probably be spared.

The deer are wary this season, in a week only three have succumbed to the deadly bullets of the whole crew, but snow is what they want and have not as yet had, for the best tracking of deer. The next report will probably show much better luck for our hunters.

They Got There.

Were you ever honored by being the head push and all-around manager of some object that was purely for the public good and not even thanks to yourself? We mean some object and aim, in which there were no oysters, or other stomach inducements; no prizes, no premiums, no chances to get something for nothing, and nothing but pure benevolence on which to place your pyrrhic pole. Well then you haven't been to war at all, and will have to let Dewey and his set stand above you in the line.

If you have ever tried that kind of work you will know what we mean when we say that too much credit can't be given Prof. Roode and his corps of teachers: Misses Merigold, Evans, Roy, Brown, Baxter and Hayes in their efforts to secure the High School Lecture Course. Between the thin hard soil of selfishness in some spots, the barrenness of brains to plough through in others, and other snags corners between, it has taken work and a plentitude of pluck. But they have won the victory and secured what promises to be the best course Yale has ever had.

The first in the course will be "The Boston Stars" on Monday evening, Nov. 20. There is no need to commend these to Yale people. They have been the delight and joy of all in the past and their luster is by no means dimmed by time.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Editor—Mary E. Brown.

Cam Baxter is the new student in the high room.

Ten high room pupils are seated in the grammar room.

Bruce Montney is the new pupil in the grammar room.

Seventy-seven books were drawn from the library last week.

Tom Anderson is the new pupil in the second intermediate.

John Green has returned to school after a two week's absence.

The "You say, I say," club met with Maie Evans, Wednesday evening.

Clouds will not prevent any one from seeing the "Stars" Monday evening.

Maud Mitchell, who is teaching near St. Clair, was a caller at the high room Thursday.

Ina Wharton and Earl Curvin are absent from the second primary on account of sickness.

One more improvement in the primary departments. Both rooms are supplied with water from the water mains.

Mrs. Emerson Cooper, Mrs. Drennan, Mrs. Morrison and Mrs. L. Zardt, of Fremont, Mich., visited the first primary Friday afternoon.

The visitors in the grammar room Friday afternoon were Mrs. Lindow, of Marine City, Mrs. Belle Brown, of Chicago and Mrs. Jardine.

Thornton Holden called on Mr. Roode and presented him with a very beautiful bouquet. Thornton is now interested in a greenhouse.

Lumber, Lath and Shingles.

I have on hand and for sale the largest stock of Lumber, Lath and Shingles of all grades ever kept in Yale also a full line of yellow pine. I keep the best maple flooring ever manufactured. I can make prices as low as the lowest. Give me a call and be convinced of what I say.

The Farmer in the Fall.

They are hauling in the buckwheat
From the field upon the hill
And the swollen stream is roaring
O'er the dam below the mill;
The ripened oats are falling
And the hungry peacock's calling
For the breakfast that the gander grabed away.
While the squirrels gaily cluster
As if nothing was the matter,
And the gobbler's getting fatter
Every day.

The colts are in the pasture
And the cows wind o'er the lea;
All the swaying limbs are naked
Where the green leaves used to be;
The housewife, all a-flutter,
Stirs the bubbling apple-butter,
With wood smoke in her nostrils and her eyes;
On the line the wash is gleaming,
On the steps the dog is dreaming,
And, above, a hawk is screaming
As it flies.

The glossy quail is resting
On the weather-beaten log
And the huntsman from the city
Stumbles down through brake and bog;
Over roots and other bowlders,
With a pair of aching shoulders,
He goes trudging with his fifty dollar gun,
Always to his purpose cleaving,
Never halting, never grieving,
But contentedly believing
It is fun.

The farmer's rosy daughter
Helps the busy hired man,
They are husking corn as blithely
And as briskly as they can.
They are very near together
As they husk and wonder whether
There are red ears they'll chance to find or not;
She is looking out to see one,
He is hoping he may "tree one,"
But there doesn't seem to be one
In the lot.

A subtle charm enfolds them
As they tear the husks away;
There is music in the cackle
Of husk up in the bay;
Now she hears his exclamation
And is full of perturbation,
For at last—the lucky ear is found!
Flashes mount into their faces,
He the happy chance embraces—
And she giggles as he chases
Her around.

O the farmer's lot is happy,
And the farmer's dreams are sweet,
If there's money in his pockets
And his bins are full of wheat—
Free from all the city's clamor
He may live defying grammar,
And the falling leaves serve to make him ad;
Having cleared up all his labors,
Fearing naught from ships or sabers,
He plays checkers with his neighbors,
And is glad.—Mich. Tradesman.

Visitors From Yale.

This fall we notice many visitors from Yale and vicinity. Haven't yet found one but was glad they had come. Guess the Expositor has some readers out that way. One young lady wrote us last week to send her 2 pair of gray Kid Gloves like we advertised in the Expositor for 98 cents at the store, or $1 by mail. We are getting mail orders for all kinds of goods from our Expositor readers, and hardly ever fail to please them. We hope you will give our big Millinery Department a trial order this fall. $4 hats here are like $6 ones in most places—always saving our customers money. Come or write. Boice's—Port Huron.

School Reports.

General News.

Asman & Beard's dry goods house in Port Huron has been closed.

Graves Bros., of the Highbanks, have raised over 800 bushels of onions this year.

The County Teachers' Association will meet in Port Huron on December 1 and 2.

R. E. French, a prominent Port Huron man and a resident of Ft. Gratiot since 1861, died recently.

Thirty or forty houses in Cass City contain cases of measles and the disease is still spreading.

We understand by the Memphis Bee that the Richmond Review has been purchased by a man from Corrunna.

Several Cass City boys have been found guilty of stealing books from the school and offering them for sale.

In regard to an electric railway between Port Huron and Marine City all obstacles have been removed and it is expected that work on the grading will be begun at once and cars will be running by the middle of January.

Mrs. Mary Sibley, one of the oldest pioneers of Armada village, died last week, at the age of nearly 97 years. With her husband Mrs. Sibley came to Armada in 1835. They were charter members of the Congregational church, she being chief promoter of the organization and the church being her centre of interest all her life. She was also one of the founders of the Sunday school. At the time of her death she was the oldest member of the school and one of her grandchildren, the youngest, Mrs. Sibley was one of the comparatively few pensioners from the war of 1812. Her history has been an interesting one and her long life a useful one. Beloved by all she had been familiarly known as Aunt Mary.

Used by British Soldiers in Africa.

Cap. C. G. Dennison is well known all over Africa as commander of the forces that captured the famous rebel Galishe. Under date of Nov. 4, 1897, from Vryburg, Bechuanaland, he writes: "Before starting on the last campaign I bought a quantity of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used myself when troubled with bowel complaint, and had given to my men, and in every case it proved most beneficial."
